About the Artist: Lingikoni Vaka‘uta

As an economics student at the University of the South Pacific (USP), Lingikoni Vaka‘uta never imagined he would become an artist. Nearly finished with his degree yet unsatisfied, he joined the first painting workshop at the Oceania Centre for Arts and Culture in 1998. He was given a piece of canvas and told to tell his story. Unexpectedly, he found inspiration in his memories of growing up in Lapaha, Tonga, and an answer to what had been missing. What emerged were the beginnings of a style inspired by Tongan practices, legends, and heritage.

Lingikoni continues to find inspiration in the poetic and insightful Tongan metaphors and stories he has learned or composed. The multifaceted meanings and reinterpretation in Lingikoni’s works are rooted in his memories of Tonga, yet visually they are distinctively contemporary. His stylized representations of gods, animals, and tattooed bodies do not imitate the work of his ancestors; however, the themes rejuvenate cultural connections, because by relating to his home and past, he connects with his ancestors and fonua (land). Depicting a legendary scene such as Maui slowing the sun (page 144), or a provocative metaphor as in Meeting of the Fishes (page 72), Lingikoni challenges, intrigues, and plays with imagery composed of smaller motifs, presenting stories within stories as if tattooing his/stories across the artwork.

Whether sharing his own experiences, offering technical advice through participative exchange, or facilitating the affairs of the Red Wave Collective, Lingikoni’s participation is fundamental to the operations of the Oceania Centre. He is a confidante and mentor to his fellow artists, as Epeli Hau‘ofa is to him, making it natural for Lingikoni to become the collective’s coordinator.

Aside from painting, drawing, sculpting, coordinating, and exhibiting with the Red Wave Collective, Lingikoni is completing a Master of Arts in Pacific Studies at the university.

KATHERINE HIGGINS
The Charmer
Ink on paper, 2006, 77 cm x 57 cm.
Photo by Katherine Higgins.
Vaka Vuku
Ink on paper, 2006, 77 cm × 57 cm.
Photo by Katherine Higgins.
Ko e Hala (The Way)
Oil on canvas, 2006, 184 cm × 169 cm.
Photo by Oceania Centre staff.
Meeting of the Fishes
Ink on paper, 2006, 219 cm x 114 cm.
Photo by Oceania Centre staff.

© Lingikoni Vaka'uta
Contact the artist for reprint permission
The Riddles of Sangone
Ink on paper, 1998, 77 cm x 57 cm.
Photo by Katherine Higgins.

© Lingkoni Vaka’uta
Contact the artist for reprint permission
Fire Keeper
Ink on paper, 1999, 77 cm x 57 cm.
Photo by Katherine Higgins.
The Legend of Maui Slowing the Sun
Oil on canvas, 2006, 190 cm x 170 cm.
Photo by Oceania Centre staff.
Kohai, Koau, Ko Momo (Who, Me, and Momo), The First Human Beings of Tonga
Oil on canvas, 2006, 190 cm x 198 cm.
Photo by Oceania Centre staff.