FOREWORD

This extensive Japanese Collection on Korea, apparently the most comprehensive of its kind in the United States, is the culmination of the continued efforts of librarians and the generous gifts of interested individuals for many years. The recent donation to the University of Hawaii of the invaluable materials by the late Toshiyuki Kajiyama (1929 - 1975) has further strengthened the collection.

The collection is a resource of major significance for research in an area that has been drawing the attention of an increasing number of scholars. Thus, the compilation of the bibliography by Dr. Masato Matsui, Scholar/Librarian, of the Japanese Collection does, undoubtedly, not only facilitate national library cooperation but also help promote scholarship in this important area.

Douglas S. Yamamura,
Former Chancellor
University of Hawaii at Manoa

PREFACE

This compilation, funded by a grant from the Japan-United States Friendship Commission with additional support from a University of Hawaii Japan Studies Endowment grant, is intended primarily to make the rich Japanese research collection on Korea in the Asia Collection of the University of Hawaii readily accessible to scholars.

This important collection has been developed over many years through the continued enthusiasm and support of the local academic community at large, whose unflagging interest also contributed to the establishment of the Center for Korean Studies in 1972.

In 1976, the personal collection of the late Toshiyuki Kajiyama, a contemporary novelist, was donated to the University of Hawaii Library. Born in Seoul and educated through high school in Korea, Mr. Kajiyama was naturally attracted both to the culture and people of Korea and to the question of Japanese overseas migration. He collected more than 1,000 titles of indispensable materials, some of which were classified documents of the Government-General of Korea. Judging from his vast collection on overseas Japanese, it seems likely that Mr. Kajiyama intended to write a history of Japanese migration, but this project was forestalled by his untimely death at the age of forty-five. We are certain, however, that it was his foremost desire that his collection be used for the advancement of scholarship.

The entries and indexes in this book are arranged alphabetically according to the method usually followed in Japan—letter by letter instead of word by word. This means that a title like Chosenshi appears before a title like Chosen soran, and that a name like Ch'oe Chae-ik appears before a name like Cho Gyo. The only exception made here to this practice is the use of a comma to set off surnames in the author index. The combination of romanized words also conforms to common usage in Japan.

However, the readings of the characters in some works are difficult to determine and may be subject to other interpretations.

The English in parentheses below the title for each entry is meant as a general indication of the work's content, not as a literal translation of its original title. As such, the English description is often very different from what a literal translation of the title would be.

The compilers would particularly like to acknowledge the continued encouragement and support of former Chancellor Douglas S. Yamamura; Professor Dae-Sook Suh, director of the Center for Korean Studies; Professor V. Dixon Morris, chairman of the Japanese Language Library Collection Advisory committee; Professor Minoru Shinoda, chairman of the University of Hawaii Japan Studies Endowment committee; and Miss Joyce M. Wright, head of the Asia Collection. We also wish to thank Mr. Sam Suk Hahn, Korean bibliographer for the Asia Collection, for transliterating the Korean and acquiring a number of original documents issued by the Government-General of Korea; Mr. Michael Macmillan and Mr. Homer Williams, editors at the Center for Korean Studies, for their editing and technical work; Mrs. Aiko Crandall of the Asia Collection for her calligraphy; and Professor Peter H. Lee of the East Asian Literature Department for proof-reading the text of the final manuscript.

The compilers bear sole responsibility for any errors that may have crept in, and we would be grateful to have them brought to our attention.

Minako I. Song
Masato Matsui
