

FROM THE EDITORS

We would like to wish our readers a happy New Year and to report that the coming of the millenium had no adverse effect on the journal. In fact, we have only good news to report.

First, we are very pleased to welcome Dr. Dorothy Chun, Associate Professor of German at the University of California, Santa Barbara, and a frequent contributor to the journal, who has joined the editorial team. Dr. Chun is the Guest Editor for this special issue on "The Role of Computer Technology in Second Language Acquisition Research." Her enthusiasm, energy, and dedication, as well as her expertise in Second Language Acquisition and Computer-Assisted Language Learning will strengthen the ability of our editorial team to bring you exciting information about the rapidly growing field of language learning and technology.

Second, we are happy to announce that beginning with this issue, Language Learning & Technology will increase its publication schedule from two to three issues per year. Note our new publication schedule for the next two years which will align the volumes with calendar years:

January 2000	Vol. 3, No. 2
May 2000	Vol. 4, No. 1
September 2000	Vol. 4, No. 2
January 2001	Vol. 5, No. 1
May 2001	Vol. 5, No. 2
September 2001	Vol. 5, No. 3

Our publication schedule includes a series of exciting special issues. The May 2000 issue (Vol. 4, No. 1), edited by Dorothy Chun, will constitute Part II of the current special issue on the "The Role of Computer Technology in Second Language Acquisition Research." Our September 2000 issue (Vol. 4, No. 2), guest-edited by Rick Kern will be dedicated to the topic of "Literacies and Technologies." The May 2001 issue (Vol. 5, No. 2), edited by Irene Thompson, will deal with "Computer-Assisted Language Testing." Finally, the theme of the September issue (Vol. 5, No. 3), guest-edited by Chris Tribble and Michael Barlow, is "Using Corpora in Language Teaching and Learning."

Third, in a continual effort to make our journal as reader-friendly as possible, we are pleased to announce that starting with this issue our readers will be able to access the journal's full archives by a new set of indices (by author, title, issue, and subject) and by content searches of the complete set of full-text articles.

We would like to report one more change. Beginning with the next issue, Jennifer Leeman, Ph.D. candidate in Applied Linguistics at Georgetown University, will take over as book and software review editor of Language Learning & Technology. We would like to thank India Plough and Alison Mackey, our outgoing book and software editors for their superb contribution to the journal.

We hope you will continue supporting our journal by sending us manuscripts, commentaries, and reviews , and by taking out a free subscription. We look forward to seeing you in May with the second part of the millennial issue on "The Role of Computer Technology in Second Language Acquisition Research."

We would like to hear from you. Send us e-mail with your comments and suggestions.
