

Does the Constitution Govern the Activities of U.S. Officials Acting Outside the United States in Dealing with Aliens?

In 1976, when the United States was negotiating the Compacts of Free Association with the Micronesians, the U.S. CIA wiretapped the Micronesian negotiators to determine their negotiating positions.

Did this violate the U.S. Constitution?

International law?

The U.S. responsibilities under the Trusteeship Agreement?
